1. The purpose of loop structure helps with time management, using the code over and over again instead of writing more statements of codes.
2. A while statement is a loop structure which executes a set of statements over and over again, do-while is an alternative form of the while statement, the condition is not evaluated until after the first execution of the loop.
3. During the reviews of the applications Oddsum and Evens
4. a) An infinite loop is when the program keeps repeating lines of the code
   b) Forgetting to upload the control variable or writing the loop in the wrong order
   c) When the loop encounter over the limit of data that it can handle
5. 60 times
6. Whenever x is less than 122
7. Uses for counters could be tracking of iteration and event tracking, two uses for accumulators could be for calculating averages and calculating totals.
8. int sum = 0;
   for (int i = 3; i <= 10; i++) { sum += i;
   }

9. Iteration count and minimum number

11. a) the value is 9
b) value returned is my